

Making Neighborhoods — Being Made by Neighborhoods

entrance
free

Research shows that neighborhoods and neighbors are important for our everyday life. Infrastructure, but also social relations, are concentrated in those small-scale spatial units, which have an impact on the life chances of its residents. However, neighborhood relations are also important to overcome crises, like the Covid-19 pandemic, or to reach a more sustainable lifestyle.

Those relations and further topics will be discussed at the scientific workshop »Making Neighborhoods — Being Made by Neighborhoods«.

Key Note:
George Galster, Distinguished professor,
Wayne State
University Detroit

04th May 2022
2 to 5 pm

With contributions from

- Sören Petermann (RUB/ZEFIR)
- Susanne Frank (TU Dortmund)
- Heike Hanhörster (ILS)
- Torsten Böltung (EBZ, InWis)
- Sebastian Kurtenbach (FH Münster/
GUD & RUB)

RUB acts in accordance with the Coronavirus Protection Ordinance of
NRW. Please find the current rules here:

Location:

Beckmanns Hof an der Ruhr-Universität
Bochum — Universitätsstraße 150